bring as many as 165 new jobs and generate hundreds of thousands of dollars in annual tax revenue for the city — company officials have been most concerned by the appeal filed on behalf of local and regional trade unions. The other two were brought by attorneys representing Albert D. Seeno Construction Co. and Mt. Diablo Recycling. Pittsburg's City Council tonight will be asked to deny the appeals and grant its approval for the mill, to be built on an approximately 45-acre site on East Third Street, next to the USS-POSCO Industries steel plant. The United Spiral Pipe factory is a joint venture among U.S. Steel Corp., South Korean steelmaker POSCO and South Korean tube products maker SeAH Steel Corp. At full capacity, the mill's workers annually would manufacture about 300,000 tons of spiral welded pipe, which would be sent elsewhere by rail to serve the oil and natural gas industries. In meeting with city officials and before the Planning Commission last month, company officials stressed that they have to meet a "tight timeline" to open the factory by December 2008, allowing it to compete effectively with five other plants planned or open elsewhere in the United States and Canada. The appeals already have delayed the company's plans to start building the plant this month. Pittsburg officials have made the project a top priority, putting it on what they call the "fast-approval track." During all meetings they have had with company officials — whether here or in Korea — they have made clear the importance of reaching an agreement with the unions. During two meetings with Pittsburg Mayor Ben Johnson, United Spiral Pipe President M.S. Lee "wanted me to push the unions to back off," Johnson recalled Friday. Johnson said Lee also asserted that he, as the mayor, had the power to do that, a suggestion Johnson said he immediately disputed. "I told him, all I can do is call somebody" with the union and ask that they be flexible, Johnson said, noting he did that when local union groups appealed a recent expansion at Dow Chemical Co. But it will be up to factory officials, he said, "to figure out exactly how they want to pursue it, as far as the unions go." Johnson put the same question to the union, noting, "If you fight tooth and nail and lose, they (the company) go away. If they go away, what do you have in your pocket? Zero dollars." Greg Feere, CEO of the Contra Costa Building and Construction Trades Council, did not return calls placed to his office and cell phone Friday. United Spiral Pipe officials have declined to talk candidly about the project with the Times

Man died in jail of natural causes

■ DUBLIN: Investigation finds that secondary cause of death was altercation with another inmate at Santa Rita Jail

By Roman Gokhman
 STAFF WRITER

Although the manner of death of a Santa Rita Jail inmate who died in custody in August was determined to be natural, it was caused as a direct result of a fight with another inmate directly preceding his death, authorities said. "He had some serious heart problems," Santa Rita Jail Commander Bert Wilkinson said. Abdul Graham, 31, of San Leandro died Aug. 21 after he was found unresponsive in a shower at the jail. He was rushed to ValleyCare Medical Center in Pleasanton, where he was soon

...On look, how messy").
And then, ("Oh look,
there's a nest in the rose bushes!").
And then, ("My God, Ed, there are eggs in that nest!").
I suspect you can guess what will happen next.
The mortality rate for "backyard ducklings" is close to 99 percent.

Besides not having a decent pond to dabble in for plants and other tasty things (very few calories in chlorine), the disoriented ducklings will have to run a deadly gantlet of cats, dogs, kids, fast cars and city streets.

If your pair of mallards do stick around long enough to build a nest, please destroy it before they can lay eggs. If they have laid eggs, remove them before they have a chance to hatch.

Hopefully, this will force them to fly back to the country club pond or another safer, more natural spot to raise their family.

Otherwise, let your patience be your guide in loan-just about perfect. Hang onto a wiggly wig in front of Mabel's nose so it looks alive, and then take off running around the living room. She'll get the message.

If I were you, I'd also pick up a big box of Band-Aids while you're at the store.
(Just kidding about running. Drop the chicken and she'll eat it.)

A FINAL NOTE

Hug the cat, brush the dog, cut up some carrots for the parrot, change the water in the fish tank and get a new exercise wheel for the hamster.

Oh, yeah, and a Wall Street Journal subscription for the rat.

Art in the Bay Area

Staff writers Laura Casey, Jennifer Modenessi and Robert Taylor have taken up the call for an arts blog and have begun posting at Seen (www.ibabuzz.com/seen). Here's the start of Taylor's debut post "Books, marked":

"The office is getting a makeover — walls are falling, computers are coming, desks are moving. Writer's desks are notorious for collections of the detritus we call "research material," from outdated phone books to promotional hats from the circus.

The editor e-mailed this warning: "Every-one, no exceptions, has to pick up, throw away, file, throw away, take home, throw away the papers, notes, press releases and reports underneath, around and atop our desks."

Old museum exhibit catalogues and books such as "Eroticism in Art" have been swept away, stuffed into boxes and the trunk of the Mazda.

But here are five books (including two linked to recent exhibits) that must stay [...]"

LOS ANGELES DAILY NEWS

MALIBU — Still reeling a month after wind-whipped wildfires racked the exclusive community of Malibu, the Pfeiffer family awoke at 4 a.m. Saturday to once again face the stifling smell of smoke.

An hour later, sheriff's deputies were at the Pfeiffers' Corral Canyon home telling them to evacuate. The family grabbed what they could — a computer hard drive, passports, financial records, a change of clothes, family photos — and fled.

"This will be the fifth time we have been evacuated," Jon Pfeiffer, a 20-year Malibu resident, said as he stood along Pacific Coast Highway later Saturday waiting for news of his home. "The second time in a month."

The Pfeiffers are among thousands in the tony enclave who grappled with firestorms that by late Saturday had scorched at Last month, fewer than 40 sold.

One home on Catanzaro that sold at more than its $445,000 asking price in late 2005 sat for 10 months this year at $322,900, said listing agent Jim Mann. Nobody bit. It sold at auction last week for an as-yet undisclosed amount.
